Vimal Jerald, Assistant Professor, Department of Computer Science, St. Joseph’s College, Tiruchirappalli.

The FDP aimed to empower faculty members with the competencies required to design, develop, and deploy Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) following the Four Quadrant Approach prescribed by SWAYAM–NPTEL. Over the seven-day programme, Dr. Vimal Jerald provided a comprehensive overview of MOOC design, covering video lectures, e-content creation, self-assessment strategies, discussion forums, and LMS deployment.

The sessions progressed systematically from conceptual understanding to hands-on implementation. Participants were trained in recording and enhancing video lectures using Zoom, creating interactive content through whiteboard tools, integrating voiceovers and creative audio elements, and employing multiple AI platforms for content generation, assessment design, and learner engagement. Special emphasis was placed on aligning all course components with SWAYAM–NPTEL standards and uploading them effectively on the Moodle LMS platform.

The FDP concluded with a feedback session in which participants expressed high satisfaction with the structure, relevance, and practical orientation of the programme. Certificates were issued to all participants who successfully completed the FDP.
